

Russell Barnett is the founder and a partner at Australian Venture Consultants. He has approximately 20 years of experience in complex strategic and operational analysis across a range of industries in the Australia and the Asia Pacific region.

Russell's primary focus is the primary industries and sectors that service those industries. He has extensive current experience in analyzing and developing strategy and advocacy platforms for a wide range of primary industry issues including workforce dynamics, education and training requirements, future technology and knowledge needs, infrastructure and logistics requirements, cross sector collaborations, environmental issues, social issues, taxation and the intersection with regional development.

Russell is a principal adviser to Broome Future Limited, a not-for-profit, privately funded organization established to advocate for the sustainable economic, social, cultural and environmental development of Broome and the Kimberley for the benefit of the Kimberley community and industry, as well as that of Western Australia and the Nation. Russell was the principal author of Broome Future's inaugural study, Unlocking the Door: A Study into the Feasibility of Broome as the Commercial and Logistics Hub for the Kimberley Region.

Russell has completed a bachelor of commerce degree, graduate certificate in minerals economics and a masters of business administration. He is an adjunct associate professor at the University of Western Australia Business School and a member of the Senate of Murdoch University. Russell was awarded a WA Business News 40Under40 Business Leaders award in 2003.
